HETV Opportunities Hub.com Feedback

Website

Website homepage	Logo to be HETV Opportunities Hub, instead of Larkin 2
All pages	Website domain to be HETVOpportunitiesHub.com
All pages	Remove 60Forty logo at bottom middle (shouldn't say 60forty anywhere)
All pages	Imagery is male-dominated - more diverse representation
All pages	Opportunities vs roles is confusing - can we specify what is work experience, traineeships vs. standard roles?
Homepage	Video is male-dominated and feels commercial-filmmaking leaning, doesn't feel like it matches with the productions
Homepage	if it's not on our site, its not ours' feels a bit abrasive when the aim of the website is probably to be exciting etc
Homepage - three ways in	Needs to be clearer that these are the development programmes we run and recruitment/hiring is separate and additional (if you're just looking for a job it feels like it isnt for us)
All pages	A brief explanation somewhere of what Larkin2 is (an SPV for a production) and that the website is across multiple productions
Homepage	Sign up box could be higher up as its the most useful tool on the website itself
Roles	'message the role finder' in search box is confusing
Homepage	Top bar navigation has great titles that should be used in the body text too (e.g. 'opportunities' vs 'roles' vs 'commitments')
Homepage - Three ways in	Seconding the above point on the "Three ways in, depending on where you are starting" - I feel this highlights just 3 of the programmes we run and makes it feel like this is all we do. This would be better formatted, focusing on "Something for every level of industry experience", highlighting that we have opportunities to join in on training, we have roles to apply to, and we run development programmes.
Homepage - Three ways in	I don't like the "Looking for a crew role" being separate. I would also like to see, somewhere on the website, the clarification that we will always aim to have applications open for at least 5 days to be accessible
Website	The colours feel too dark to me; 60Forty and T&D feel uplifting and exciting, opening up opportunities in the industry. The dark colours feel too much like we're exclusive and not open to all
'What we'll tell you straight '	The "Commitment 4: We can not give individual feedback " feels weird to be phrased as a " commitment "; it should be more of an FAQ than a 'commitment'. This also stands for Commitment 5. I feel the commitments should be exclusive to our morals and stances rather than things we can't do because of our capacity. One commitment should be that we don't offer anything someone would have to pay to be part of- worded better of course.

Opportunities	Missing "Training Courses"
Roles	The drop-downs have to be populated with the drop-down options.
'No spam. Unsubscribe anytime."	There needs to be a page for unsubscribing linked as well.
Homepage	I don't like the "One place, and it is the real one". At the end of the day, we are just a drama production; this feels like a slogan for a clothing brand that's trying to combat dupes of its products. We're not going to get someone pretending to be our production
Website	This might be a weird comment, so feel free to discard this, but I can't explain why. I don't like the emphasis on things like "the real thing " and "official"; "this is where you start". Something about the format feels unwelcoming and too exclusive again.

Portal

Opportunities page	More of a question - are we having all jobs / programmes under 'Opportunities' - they were spearated before
Opportunities page	What is URL slug
Opportunities page	When listing job requirements the points are not bullet-pointed wehn previewing the job post - ensure there is a way to make these bullet points
Opportunities page	I think public layout is all a bit white / plain. Needs another colour element to make stuff pop - the sage green could be used as a background or something
