RECRUITMENT TEMPLATE

Please ensure you read the Hiring Tips before completing this form.

Inclusive Outreach & Recruitment Guidance
Please consider what is needed for the role before finalising the job description/role profile:
Example of common assumptions to challenge (with workarounds) Driving licence / access to a car: Only require a licence if driving is intrinsic to the role. Otherwise consider: a hire car for specific days; taxis/couriers; unit transport; assign driving tasks to a role already driving; set pick-up/drop-off points; make 'travel required' true but 'licence required' flexible. Physical/manual handling requirements: Specify tasks (e.g., lifting up to X kg) and plan workarounds: team lifting; trolleys/dollies; closer storage; adjusted load-in timings; redistribute tasks so one person isn't expected to do all manual handling. Kit ownership: Avoid 'must own full kit' unless essential. Consider providing equipment, hire options, or department shared kit to avoid excluding lower-income candidates. Total flexibility / 'always on' availability: Define genuinely immovable moments vs habitual 'always on'. Use notice where possible, rota/cover for peaks, and clear escalation rules. Note: Under the Equality Act 2010, unnecessary criteria can create indirect discrimination risk. Good practice is to use objective, role-related criteria that are balanced and justified.

OUR PRODUCTION CULTURE: (this section is standard across the production and should not be amended)
This production recognises itself as a workplace as well as a creative endeavour. Our approach is practical, collaborative and grounded in the realities of high-end TV. We take a production support–led approach to culture. That means we actively plan for accessibility, career development, inclusion, sustainability and welfare. We put clear structures in place so support is embedded from the outset. Leadership is expected at every level and for it to be curious, accountable and human. Everyone—regardless of role or seniority—has a part to play in maintaining a respectful, safe and collaborative working environment. We ask people to bring their skill, their perspective and their responsibility to the production, and in return we commit to building an environment where everyone can thrive, grow and do work they're proud of.

This is a living approach to our productions that evolves from show to show, shaped by the people working on it. We've implemented this way of working across multiple productions and continue to learn from what works, what needs refining, and what our crews tell us matters most.

More information on this Production Support led approach can be found here

ROLE-SPECIFIC APPLICATION QUESTIONS

All applicants will complete a standard application form. In addition, departments may submit up to three role-specific technical questions to be included in the application form.

Please insert up to three questions that will help determine whether an applicant has the required technical knowledge, skills, or experience to work in your department. These may include questions about specific tools, software, processes, or qualifications that are genuinely required for the role.

Important Note: Where possible, please avoid using these questions to exclude applicants based on experience that could be learned on the job or supported by the production.

Advice from our Accessibility Coordinator:
Try to ask clear questions that aren't too open-ended.

Example
Good: "What do you think makes a good wardrobe assistant?"
Better: "What 3 qualities do you think are most essential for a wardrobe assistant?"

Try to focus on what they could bring to the role, rather than on your expectations of them.

Example
Good: "The Locations team are expected to be a crucial point of contact for many departments - would you describe yourself as good under pressure?” Better: “The Locations team are often a point of contact for many departments - how would you handle prioritising multiple requests?”

1. 2. 3.
